

Dear Physician Name,

Early detection of hearing-related problems in children is often the key to effective treatment. During “May is Better Hearing and Speech Month” (BHSM), parents may be more likely to seek information or services related to the detection of hearing disorders. The name of your organization, clinic, or private practice can offer audiology services that can help parents seeking your advice when confronted with these problems.

We provide hearing screenings and comprehensive evaluations to determine a specific area of concern and the appropriate method of treatment. If a hearing problem is diagnosed, we offer therapeutic services in individual or group sessions.

Our name of your organization or private practice specializes in difficult-to-test children (team testing), fitting children with hearing aids, auditory processing disorder evaluation (combination speech and hearing test battery), and otoacoustic emissions (early infant screenings).

Please let us know how we can help the families you serve. If you have any questions, please contact us at your phone number.

Sincerely,
