Author Index

Avery, J., & Kennedy, M. Intervention for memory disorders after TBI. October 2002. 9-14.
Beeson, P. M. Memory impairment associated with aphasia due to stroke. October 1992. 9-11.
Belanger, S. A. General considerations for managing the aphasic patient in the acute medical setting. October 1994. 2-6.
Boyle, M. What’s this all about? July 1999. 2.
Brobeck, T. C. Strategies for enhancing the body of evidence for clinical decision making. April 2004. 11-16.
Brown, T., Petersen, S. E., & Schlaggar, B. L. Functional neuroimaging approaches to the study of human brain development. June 2003. 3-10.
Busch, C. How is a treatment plan for an aphasic patient reviewed in terms of Medicare policy and guidelines? October 1994. 14-17.
Buzolich, M. J. Augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) assessment: Adult aphasia. December 2006. 4-12.

Gilger, J. W. The role of genes in the development of language and language-related disorders. May 1997. 5-10.

Haley, M., & Raymer, A. M. Speech, language and cognitive impairments in ALS. April 2000. 2-5.

Harris, V. M., Aftonomos, L. B., & Steele, R. D. Language Care Center treatment programs and the rehabilitation of aphasia and related disorders. April 2000. 11-14.

Henry, M. L., & Beeson, P. M. Primary progressive aphasia and semantic dementia. April 2006. 21-27.
Hillis, A. Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. April 1994. 2-6.

Huer, M. B. Acquisition of culture from a developmental perspective. April 2005. 7-15.

Katz, R. C. The role of computers in the treatment of people with aphasia: Reflections on the past 20 years. April 2000. 6-10.

Kiran, S. Pure alexia: Causes, characteristics, and treatment. April 2006. 16-21.

Langdon, H. W. Providing speech-language services to older populations: The role of ethnicity and acculturation. April 2005. 21-25.

Lux, J. B. Towards a common language for functioning and disablement: ICD-10 (The international classification of impairments, activities, and participation. March 1999. 8-10.

Maher, L. M. Board of Division Coordinators meeting. September 1998. 4.

Kiran, S. Pure alexia: Causes, characteristics, and treatment. April 2006. 16-21.

Mahendra, N. A multicultural perspective on assessing TW, a bilingual client with aphasia. October 2006. 9-18.

Musson, N. Let’s get in the game! October 2000. 4-5.

Musson, N. The eyes and the ears for the senator: Conversation with the staff. October 2000. 22.

Musson, N. Questions and answers from a Division 2 legislative councilor. October 1999. 4-6.

Netsell, R. W. Rationale, procedures, and instrumentation in the evaluation and treatment of individuals with dysarthria. August 1995. 7-11.

Raskin, S. A. Prospective memory training after acquired brain damage. October 1996. 27-33.

Rogers, M. A. Treatment research on augmentative and alternative communication for adults with apraxia of speech. December 2001. 21-28.

Rosenthal, W. S. Group therapy is better than individual therapy: With special attention to stuttering. June 2004. 3-8.

Royal, C. Specialty certification: What’s in it for me? October 1999. 3.

Silkes, J. P. Cerebral vascular imaging: Methods, applications, and considerations. April 2003. 10-17.

Smith, E. Effects of psychotropic medications on speech and language. August 1992. 4-7.

Snowling, M. J. The definition and characteristics of dyslexia. June 1993. 5-7.

Sohlberg, M. M. Making the management of awareness deficits a core part of cognitive rehabilitation. October 1996. 6-12.

Square, P. A. Neuromotor speech impairment accompanying aphasia. April 1994. 11-16.

Taylor, M. Epileptiform activity and discontinuities in language acquisition. April 2006. 4-11.

Tillis, J. A. Diagnostic goals and computer-assisted evaluation of speech and related physiology. August 1995. 3-7.

Tomblin, J. B. Genetics of specific language impairment and dyslexia. October 1993. 9-12.

Workinger, M. S. Treatment of severe dysarthria after TBI—or—Who says they can’t talk? December 1995. 2-6.

Subject Index

Language

Normal Language and Cognition

Language Development

Epileptiform activity and discontinuities in language acquisition. Taylor, M. April 2006. 4-11.

Functional neuroimaging approaches to the study of human brain development. Brown, T., Petersen, S. E., & Schlaggar, B. L. June 2003. 3-10.

The role of genes in the development of language and language-related disorders. Gilger, J. W. May 1997. 5-10.

Language Use in Adults

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

Related Cognitive Domains

Language Disorders

Aphasia and Other Adult Language Disorders

Acalculia

Agnosia

Agrammatism

Agraphia

The definition and characteristics of dyslexia. Snowling, M. J. June 1993. 5-7.

The discrepancy definition of dyslexia. Siegel, L. S. June 1993. 7-11.

Genetics of specific language impairment and dyslexia. Tomblin, J. B. October 1993. 9-12.
Aphasia

Augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) assessment: Adult aphasia. Buzolich, M. J. December 2006. 4-12.

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

Crossed aphasia: A review of the syndrome. Sheehy, L. April 2006. 11-16.

Department of Veterans Affairs cooperative studies on aphasia revisited. Wertz, R. T. October 2005. 6-13.

A multicultural perspective on assessing TW, a bilingual client with aphasia. Mahendra, N. October 2006. 9-18.

Neuromotor speech impairment accompanying aphasia. Square, P. A. April 1994. 11-16.

Language Disorders in Children

Epileptiform activity and discontinuities in language acquisition. Taylor, M. April 2006. 4-11.
Genetics of specific language impairment and dyslexia. Tomblin, J. B. October 1993. 9-12.
The role of genes in the development of language and language-related disorders. Gilger, J. W. May 1997. 5-10.

Dementia: Language/Cognitive Impairments

Limb Apraxia

Memory Impairments

Intervention for memory disorders after TBI. Avery, J., & Kennedy, M. October 2002. 9-14.

Language Disorders in Personality and Psychiatric Disturbances

Effects of psychotropic medications on speech and language. Smith, E. August 1992. 4-7.

TBI: Language/Cognitive Impairments

School re-entry after TBI. Ylvisaker, M. July 1992. 6-8.

Assessment and Intervention

Screening

Assessment

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

The discrepancy definition of dyslexia. Siegel, L. S. June 1993. 7-11.

Managing the long-term communication and memory consequences of dementia. Tonkovich, J. D. December 1999. 9-14.

A multicultural perspective on assessing TW, a bilingual client with aphasia. Mahendra, N. October 2006. 9-18.

Assessment and Intervention

Screening

Assessment

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

The discrepancy definition of dyslexia. Siegel, L. S. June 1993. 7-11.

Managing the long-term communication and memory consequences of dementia. Tonkovich, J. D. December 1999. 9-14.

A multicultural perspective on assessing TW, a bilingual client with aphasia. Mahendra, N. October 2006. 9-18.

Assessment and Intervention

Screening

Assessment

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

The discrepancy definition of dyslexia. Siegel, L. S. June 1993. 7-11.

Managing the long-term communication and memory consequences of dementia. Tonkovich, J. D. December 1999. 9-14.
Intervention

Aphasia and Other Adult Language Disorders

Department of Veterans Affairs cooperative studies on aphasia revisited. Wertz, R. T. October 2005. 6-13.

The effectiveness of cueing hierarchies as a treatment for word retrieval impairment. Patterson, J. P. June 2001. 11-18.

Long-term care approaches to aphasia treatment and management. Elman, R. J. December 1999. 15-17.

The role of computers in the treatment of people with aphasia: Reflections on the past 20 years. Katz, R. C. April 2000. 6-10.

Evidence-based practice guidelines for autism in children 0 to 3 years. Halpern, A. April 2002. 32.

Managing the long-term communication and memory consequences of dementia. Tonkovich, J. D. December 1999. 9-14.

Speech, language and cognitive impairments in ALS. Haley, M., & Raymer, A. M. April 2000. 2-5.

Child Language Disorders

Dementia: Language/Cognitive Impairments

TBI: Language/Cognitive Impairments

Intervention for memory disorders after TBI. Avery, J., & Kennedy, M. October 2002. 9-14.

Intervention for memory disorders after TBI. Avery, J., & Kennedy, M. October 2002. 9-14.

Making the management of awareness deficits a core part of cognitive rehabilitation. Sohlberg, M. M. October 1996. 6-12.

School re-entry after TBI. Ylvisaker, M. July 1992. 6-8.

TBI case studies. Turkstra, L. May 1998. 3.

Speech

Nature of Normal Speech

Anatomy and Physiology of the Adult Speech and Swallowing System

Perception of Speech

Speech and Voice and Swallowing Disorders

Articulation and Resonance Disorders

Effects of psychotropic medications on speech and language. Smith, E. August 1992. 4-7.

Motor speech function in young males with Fragile X syndrome. June 2006. 3-7. Barnes, E. F.

Neuromotor speech impairment accompanying aphasia. Square, P. A. April 1994. 11-16.

Stuttering and Other Fluency Disturbances

Group therapy is better than individual therapy: With special attention to stuttering. Rosenthal, W. S. June 2004. 3-8.

Voice and Other Laryngeal Disorders

Assessment and Intervention

Assessment

Diagnostic goals and computer-assisted evaluation of speech and related physiology. Till, J. A. August 1995. 3-7.

Intervention

Group therapy is better than individual therapy: With special attention to stuttering. Rosenthal, W. S. June 2004. 3-8.

Treatment of severe dysarthria after TBI—or—who says they can’t talk? Workinger, M. S. December 1995. 2-6.

Instrumentation for Diagnosis, Treatment, and Research

Diagnostic goals and computer-assisted evaluation of speech and related physiology. Till, J. A. August 1995. 3-7.

Assistive Technology

Augmentative and Alternative Communication

Augmentative and alternative communication (AAC) assessment: Adult aphasia. Buzolich, M. J. December 2006. 4-12.

Professional and General Scientific Issues

Professional Affairs

Neuroscience

Medicine/Medical Issues

Introduction: Update on pharmacological and medical management of neurological disorders. Turkstra, L. June 2000. 3.

Professional Standards and Ethics

A multicultural perspective on assessing TW, a bilingual client with aphasia. Mahendra, N. October 2006. 9-18.

Specialty certification: What’s in it for me? Royal, C. October 1999. 3.

Governmental and Professional Regulations

The eyes and the ears for the senator: Conversation with the staff. Musson, N. October 2000. 22.

Let’s get in the game! Musson, N. October 2000. 4-5.

Setting a course for advocacy success; Potter, J. G. October 2000. 9-12.

Service Provision Models and Problems

Managing or caring? Johnson, A. March 1999. 6-8.

Neurogenic Speech and Language Disorders

Strategies for enhancing the body of evidence for clinical decision making. Brobeck, T. C. April 2004. 11-16.

Interdisciplinary Concerns

Professional Training

Education and Continuing Education

Continuing education update.

Patterson, J. December 1999. 24-25.

Questions and answers from a Division 2 legislative councilor. Musson, N. October 1999. 4-6.

Specialty certification: What’s in it for me? Royal, C. October 1999. 3.

Strategies for enhancing the body of evidence for clinical decision making. Brobeck, T. C. April 2004. 11-16.

Counseling

Group therapy is better than individual therapy: With special attention to stuttering. Rosenthal, W. S. June 2004. 3-8.

Title Index

Clinical implications of recent research on semantic processing. Hillis, A. April 1994. 2-6.

The discrepancy definition of dyslexia. Siegel, L. S. June 1993. 7-11.

The effectiveness of cueing hierarchies as a treatment for word retrieval impairment. Patterson, J. P. June 2001. 11-18.

Effects of psychotropic medications on speech and language. Smith, E. August 1992. 4-7.

Evidence-based practice guidelines for autism in children 0 to 3 years. Halpern, A. April 2002. 32.

The eyes and the ears for the senator: Conversation with the staff. Musson, N. October 2000. 22.

FAQs on CEUs. Patterson, J. P. June 2001. 30.

Genetics of specific language impairment and dyslexia. Tomblin, J. B. October 1993. 9-12.

Group therapy is better than individual therapy: With special attention to stuttering. Rosenthal, W. S. June 2004. 3-8.
Let’s get in the game! Musson, N. October 2000. 4-5.
Long-term care approaches to aphasia treatment and management. Elman, R. J. December 1999. 15-17.
Making the management of awareness deficits a core part of cognitive rehabilitation. Sohlberg, M. M. October 1996. 6-12.
Managing or caring? Johnson, A. March 1999. 6-8.
Managing the long-term communication and memory consequences of dementia. Tonkovich, J. D. December 1999. 9-14.
 Neuromotor speech impairment accompanying aphasia. Square, P. A. April 1994. 11-16.

Questions and answers from a Division 2 legislative councilor. Musson, N. October 1999. 4-6.

The role of computers in the treatment of people with aphasia: Reflections on the past 20 years. Katz, R. C. April 2000. 6-10.

The role of genes in the development of language and language-related disorders. Gilger, J. W. May 1997. 5-10.

School re-entry after TBI. Ylvisaker, M. July 1992. 6-8.

Speech, language and cognitive impairments in ALS. Haley, M., & Raymer, A. M. April 2000. 2-5.

Specialty certification: What’s in it for me? Royal, C. October 1999. 3.

Strategies for enhancing the body of evidence for clinical decision making. Brobeck, T. C. April 2004. 11-16.

TBI case studies. Turkstra, L. May 1998. 3.

